IMMIGRATION BILL

Upon the matter of restricting immi gration to this country, asubject fraught with deep interest to all classes, the This explains the sudden arrival in New York Mail and Express has the Havans and his prompt departure for following to say, relative to the bill in troduced by Senstor Lodge:

"There is at least one measure de signed for the general benefit of the whole country that promises to receive without being molested by the forts, but the favorable consideration of the senate at this session. This is the immigration oill as prepared by Mr. Lodge. The usestion of how to restrict immigration as been discussed in congress and out for years. A strong sentiment for radicl restriction has arisen among labor organizations, and this has encouraged the growth of a feeling akin to knownothingism. But the Lodge bill does not cater to any violent anti-foreign prejudice. Its design is not to shut out hat class of labor which will prove its value by developing the fields of the south and west. It seeks, by an educational requirement, to keep out illiterates of whom, statistics prove, only a small percentage go beyond the states along be Atlantic coast.

The trouble with our immigration has for several years been that it is declining from the United Kingdom, the Scandinavian countries and Germany, and relatively increasing from Italy, Poland, Hungary and Bohemia. A large proportion of those who come from the latter countries are not only ignorant, thriftless and physically degenerate, but are imbued with doctrines of the most cal scheme planned in the hishory of ultra socialism. It is honest labor, not fanatic and revolutionary theories, that America wants for its development There is no truth in the idea that our labor market can be overstocked, so sense of the fact that he is the most long as the tide of domestic industry is apology for manhood; and the vilest of home consumption of products is blot which has ever defaced a page of sustained by prosperity. The senate bill is most conservative, and while it may not answer promises to lessen the influx of those immigrants who swell the ranks of discontented idlers in our eastern cities and add to the number of unemployed. The object to be attained is to lessen the percentage of arrivals who remain in New York, and to increase the number of incomers to whom their port of disembarkation is only a way station on their journey to the interior. The Lodge bill differs materially from the measure which has passed the lower branch of will receive the approval of the senate out. and the concurrence of the house."
